

Payomet Performing Arts Center, North Truro, MA
info@payomet.org | www.payomet.org

Continuing where we last left off with our Live Tiny Tent Event concerts, and last summer with our "Early Stages" series— we're keeping the spirit of the Payomet tent alive with two local performative artists.

- Live Tiny Tent Event: Tianna Esperanza

Wednesday, May 27 // 6:00pm EST

Live Streaming on our Facebook page: www.facebook.com/payomet.org

Tianna Esperanza is a Cape Cod born singer/songwriter who embodies a depth of talent and heart well beyond her years. Her music has been described as having hints of Sade, Public Enemy, and Gil Scott-Heron. Tianna is known for her personally inspired lyrics with roaring protest undertones, making for a powerful and unforgettable experience— and she's joining us under our virtual Tiny Tent for an event on Wednesday, May 27 at 6pm EST.

- Live Early Stages: Poetry with Alex Brewer

Friday, May 29 // 10:00am EST

Live Streaming on our Facebook page: www.facebook.com/payomet.org

Alex Brewer will be sharing poems by his favorite authors, along with a poem and some songs of his own composition. The subject matter (and in one case, the narrator) of these works are the animals you might find on any local farm- a dog, a mouse, and horse. Alex Brewer lives in Wellfleet, where he hosts the Feed Your Love open mic at Preservation Hall the third Wednesday of every month. He studied English at Colgate University and counts John Donne as one of his primary influences as a songwriter. "His early stuff," says Brewer, "before he got religion and became a bore."